June 26, 2006 (Boca Raton, FL) --- Multi-Media Productions (USA), Inc. announces the appearance of BTE Technologies, Inc. on Health Journal Television, hosted by General Alexander Haig.

Surging healthcare costs have a direct impact on the costs of injuries on the job, and disabilities and injuries off the job. The indirect cost of absence and lost productivity, such as replacement workers, overtime, etc., actually exceed the dollars spent on treatment and lost wages. BTE's high tech tools and continuum of services, that assist employers in preventing and managing exposure to costs associated with time off from work, are capturing the attention of employers and insurance claims administrators across the country.

"Hope is not a tactical strategy for employers. Across industries, a competitive edge will be gained if unplanned absence costs can be held at bay and planned expense related to injury and lost time reduced, with interventions that keep employees working productively and safely. BTE can facilitate that competitive edge. From hiring the right individuals, to managing a health recovery from injury to disability, BTE has the best options for employers – totally customized to their environment, workforce and special needs," states Tom Rogan, CEO of BTE Technologies.

"When researching the latest in injuries and its direct impact on corporate financial losses, BTE Technologies consistently came up as being advanced with their approach and system. They were a natural to appear on our show," states producer Theresa Pietrzak.
